GREECE HOLDING; ENGLAND OFFERS "UTMOST" AID

Churchill Also Serves Notice of 1934 and 1944 Campaigns

(By the Associated Press)
With Greece reported holding fast against Italy's invasion machine, Prime Minister Winston Churchill pledged Britain's "utmost" aid to the little Aegean kingdom today and served notice of impending British "campaigns of 1943 and 1944."

Addressing commons, Churchill disclosed that the British death toll from Rome-Berlin axis air raids so far has reached 14,000 civilians and 300 soldiers.

Britain, he said, has more to fear from the mounting U-boat campaign than from the aerial siege.

Churchill declared that vigilance had changed the invasion danger to the "invasion scare"—following the systematic R.A.F. bombing of Nazi channel bases.

Cites Burden on Navy

But, he said, amid a rising toll of ship sinkings, the inability to use neutral Irish ports to fight the German submarine blockade constitutes "a heavy and grievous burden" on the navy.

As to Greece, Churchill said a British naval and air base has already been established in Crete, and, he added, "I can only say now we shall do our best."

Greek quarters said the Italian war machine was stalled all along the snow-banked mountain front in the nine-day-old Balkan conflict.

Defenders of the little Hellenic kingdom had cut off 4,000 fascist troops behind the lines, Greek dispatches said, and trapped 30,000 other Italian soldiers in the siege of Koritza, key supply base in Italian-conquered Albania.

Greek heavy artillery, firing from heights seized in fierce bayonet charges, was reported shelling the encircled city. Yugoslavian dispatches said the civilian population was withdrawing.

The Greeks were also said to have captured the Albanian town of Biglista, 3 miles northwest of the frontier, on the road to Koritza.

In the face of these Greek-claimed successes, Premier Mussolini's high command asserted that despite bad weather, bogging roads and slowing the attack, the two main thrusts toward Phlorina and Ioannina (Jannina) were still showing progress.

"The movement of our units is continuing in the Epirus (Ioannina) sector, where our troops, overcoming lively resistance, have reached the headwaters of the Vojussa river," the fascist high command said.

The Vojussa river rises in the rugged Pindus mountain range in northwest Greece, just north of Metsovo and about 35 miles from the Greek-Albanian frontier. Metsovo is 15 miles northeast of Ioannina, the immediate objective of the Italian drive in the west.

Rotarians Get Communication From England

The Gettysburg Rotary club was given a tribute recently by the club in Oldham, England. The tribute was in the form of a toast to the local club. A program on the subject of democracy was a feature of the Oldham meeting at which time Lincoln's Gettysburg address played a prominent part.

The communication from the Oldham club was read to the local members at their regular weekly meeting in the Y.W.C.A. Monday evening. The letter was read by the president, Dr. R. S. Saby.

The Gettysburg Rotarians responded with their toast to the England club and followed that by singing "God Save the King."

E. H. Blettner, of Hanover, furnished motion pictures that were taken at the Aberdeen proving grounds, as well as films showing European war scenes.

The letter from Oldham follows:
Oct. 12, 1940.
President Rasmus S. Saby,
The Rotary Club,
Gettysburg, Pennsylvania,
U. S. A.

Dear Rotarian President,
It is the custom of the Oldham club at each of its luncheons to toast an overseas club.

On the last occasion the subject of the address was "Democracy as a Way of Life." It seemed that in order to maintain the tone and purpose of the address we could not do better than to make our toast "The Rotary Club of Gettysburg."

The connection will be obvious to you even more than to ourselves.

2 Strangers Swindle Countian Out Of $1,000 in Real Estate Racket, Search for "Millionaire's" Friend

State police here have been asked by a 53-year-old Berwick township resident to find two strangers who on October 31 swindled him out of $1,000 through a complicated "racket" that involved fake real estate agents and a search for the unknown "partner" of a mythical California oil millionaire.

When the victim opened the lock box—which was supposed to contain the $1,000 he had withdrawn from the bank as evidence of his "good faith" in the undertaking on which he and the two strangers agreed to set out upon—he found a folded newspaper inside a wallet he had been told held $35,000 and pieces of newspaper cut to the size of paper money and wrapped in four $1 bills in place of his cash deposit and the "cash" deposits of his "friends."

All the victim had left from the transaction when he discovered he had been duped was four $1 bills, a metal box full of newspaper and the information that his swindling acquaintances used a large car which he thinks bore Ohio license plates.

Private A. R. Gore is in charge of the investigation which is making little headway with no clues.

Called "Agent" and "Prospect"

The countian told Private Gore that the men whom he had seen in the vicinity of his home on several occasions recently first contacted him as a real estate agent and a prospective customer for his farm.

Last Thursday, as they talked, the "agent" asked the countian if he knew a man by a certain name near York. The victim replied he did not. Then the real estate agent told this story:

"Years ago my father was in business as a partner with this man near York, but my father left and went to California where he spent $125 for 125 acres of land. He struck oil and now is worth $3,000,000. The doctor tells him he hasn't long to live and the priest has told him that he must share his wealth with his old partner near York to die an honest man. So I'm trying to find that man to give him his share of my father's wealth."

The agent explained that so far he has been unsuccessful and had decided to ask help. He asked the driver of the car in which they were riding at the time of the conversation if he would help.

Asked for "Evidence"
The driver said he would but it would have to be made worth his while. The agent offered him $10 a day during the search and then inquired of the Berwick township resident whether he would like to help and repeated the $10 per day offer to him. The countian said he would join in the search.

Then the agent explained he would have to have some evidence of good faith from his two helpers and the driver showed a roll he said contained $1,700 and the countian was asked if he had any money along. He replied in the negative but offered to go to his bank and draw out $1,000 which it was agreed would be necessary as a deposit to bind the agreement.

Then from the rear of the car a metal box was produced and the driver put his $1,700 roll beside the victim's $1,000 and both were wrapped in newspaper. The agent placed a wallet he said contained $35,000 in the box which was locked and the key turned over to the countian for safekeeping.

The men left and when they failed to re-appear to continue the search later the countian opened the box to find his $1,000 gone and in its place clipped newspaper, while folded newspaper wrapped in the four $1 bills rested where the victim thought a total of $36,700 had been placed.

"It was a pretty good racket," Private Gore observed.

Volunteers to Fill Board 2's Draft Quota

A man whose name stands 1908 from the top of the list of registrants in District No. 2 in Adams county may be the man to fill the district's first induction quota of one man, it was disclosed today by members of the draft board.

William Santford Eskridge, Gettysburg R. 3, unmarried, whose serial No. 1099 comes near the end of the district's order list, has volunteered to be taken in the draft and has been given a questionnaire by the district draft board along with the first 50 in the district list. The questionnaires are to be returned to the draft board office in the First National bank building, center square, on or before Saturday.

If Eskridge qualifies on the questionnaire and can pass a physical examination, he will be the first man drafted from the second district of the county.

Draft Board No. 1 was engaged today in stamping the serial numbers on the cards arranged in the order in which the numbers were drawn at Washington last week. The first questionnaires may be mailed by that board this evening or Wednesday. Thursday the board will occupy its permanent quarters in center square, New Oxford.

John C. Bream, Gettysburg R. D. former associate judge of Adams county, met Monday evening with the other members of the board of Draft District No. 2 of the county for the first time since his appointment last week to fill a vacancy. Dr. Bruce N. Wolff, Gettysburg, medical examiner for the district, also attended the meeting.

The board will meet again on Monday afternoon to go over the returned questionnaires and begin the work of classification. The registrants who have sent in questionnaires will be notified when they are to appear for physical examinations. They will be notified also of their classification.

Persons who need assistance in filling out the questionnaires should call upon the legal advisor in his district for help. Raymond F. Topper, Esq., is legal advisor for the registrants in District No. 1 and John P. Butt, Esq., for the second district.

A strange coincidence was discovered in the files of District No. 2 in which Merle Samuel Shafer, Guernsey, bears Serial Number 802 and the same order number.

A second instance of a similar coincidence was found in the same district. John Vernon Straley, Littlestown R. 2, has 1,661 for his order and his serial number.

SHIPS DECIDING SEA FORCE, SAYS NAVAL OFFICER

Philadelphian Speaks as Legion Observes Navy Day

"Airplanes are a very important arm of the Navy but battleships are still the deciding factor on the seas," Lt. Commander L. O. Peterson of the district staff headquarters, Fourth Naval District, Philadelphia, said in an address before the members of the Albert J. Lentz post No. 202 of the American Legion, Monday evening, as the post observed Navy Day.

Tracing the history of navies from the time they were formed by "propelled platforms on which soldiers fought" to the days of the modern battleship which opens fire at unseen targets 20 miles away with guns throwing one-ton shells that can pierce 16-inch armor, the speaker declared that "only a battleship can sink a battleship."

Battleships of the type being built by the United States Navy now cannot be sunk by bombs dropped from planes nor by a few torpedoes striking below the water line, although both of those forces might do considerable damage and make the damaged ship an easy mark for an enemy battleship in line of battle.

Preparation Needed

"The American people traditionally have felt they could meet emergencies on land and sea as they arose and that was once nearly true. But arrangements for modern warfare are not so simple," Commander Peterson pointed out. "Planned preparation for war is needed for peace. Europe has showed what happens to unprepared people. We are engaged now in building a great navy that will be second to none and will be adequate to protect us against any probable combination of powers. We must recognize the possibility of having to meet enemies on both oceans at the same time," he stated.

Reviewing the present strength of the United States Navy, he mentioned 15 battleships, all of which are overaged; 37 cruisers, 187 destroyers, 103 submarines and 2,200 planes. Ships planned or already under construction include: 17 battleships, 48 cruisers, 12 aircraft carriers, 171 destroyers, 82 submarines and 15,000 planes, he reported. An auxiliary fleet of hospital ships, tenders, supply ships, repair ships and tankers also is being constructed.

Need Skilled Workers
The work of building this navy is being pressed but it is delayed by the dearth of skilled workers and mechanics in some divisions. He added the statement that the greatest part of the cost of a battleship goes to labor.

The increase in the size of the Navy entails tremendous increases in the number of officers and enlisted men needed, Commander Peterson asserted. The number of officers required will jump from the present 11,000 to 40,000 while there will be a proportionate increase in the number of enlisted men. The ships easily can be manned by recruiting, the speaker said and described volunteer naval reserves, a new classification being established to provide men with the years of training necessary for service on a man-o-war.

Airplanes are forming an increasingly important arm of the U. S. Navy and to man the thousands of ships being built, the Navy soon will be ready to turn out 5,000 trained naval aviators a year, the Legionnaires were told.

The speaker then spoke briefly of the special purposes of aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, submarines, minesweepers, patrol boats and auxiliary craft. "The chief purpose of the light craft," he said, "is to annoy larger enemy vessels and harry commerce."

Post Lauds P. O. S. A.
Commander Peterson was introduced by Roy A. Alexander, post commander who is a Navy veteran. More than 80 members of the post attended.

The Legionnaires at a business session that preceded the speaking complimented the P. O. S. of A. of Adams county for its action with regard to the display of the American flag at voting places in the county today.

District Commander James Hefernan of York attended the meeting and spoke briefly on membership.

The post accepted an invitation to attend the Sunday evening service at Mt. Joy Lutheran church on November 10 when a sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Paul B. Beard, pastor. Members will leave the post home at 7 o'clock.

It was announced the membership banquet will be held in the post home on November 12. Details of the program will be announced later.

Adams Countians Join Nation In Record Presidential Vote

WEATHER IS AS UNCERTAIN AS ELECTION

(By the Associated Press)
The weather bureau forecast rain today in states which will cast a fourth of the nation's electoral vote.

Predictions for New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin, among other states, ranged from "light snow" and "rain" to "occasional light rain" and "showers."

The forecasts:
Light snow in upper Michigan and Wisconsin and rain elsewhere in those states.

Rain in Indiana and southern and eastern Illinois.

Occasional light rain in western Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire.

Showers in New York, Kentucky, Ohio and most of the southeast including east Texas.

In other eastern states the forecast was for cloudy weather but no precipitation before the polls close. Fair weather was indicated for most of far western states.

TELLS HOW PA. SCHOOLS BOOST DEFENSE PLANS

Dr. Cressman Says 11,000 Are Receiving Training

"The school people of America are doing a wonderful job in training men in the national defense program for industries," Dr. Paul L. Cressman, director of the bureau of instruction of the state Department of Public Instruction, said in an address before members of the Gettysburg Lions club and a score of guests that included educators from nearly all of the high schools of the county and Gettysburg college. The club observed the twentieth annual American Education Week at the meeting on Monday evening.

Doctor Cressman opened his address by complimenting Adams county schoolmen in general for their fine attitude and philosophy in educational matters. Then he told of the industrial training being given to more than 11,000 men now in Pennsylvania through the public schools. He said soon there will be 25,000 men in training in Philadelphia alone.

The industrial production peak will come next year, he said, and the skilled workers are being trained or "refreshed" in skills they have not used for some time. Toolmakers are most in demand now, he said. The cost of receiving, training and placing an individual in a job through the schools' training program has ranged from $1.50 to $100 each, he said. He said the same men on relief rolls cost several hundred dollars per year. He spoke of the importance of physical fitness in the defense program.

Doctor Cressman discussed finally necessary re-adjustment of school curriculum to "re-vitalize the school program."

President Henry T. Bream presided over the meeting. Ira Y. Baker, county superintendent of schools, was in charge of the program and presented the speaker.

Before the speaker was introduced William Keefeauver played two trombone solo numbers accompanied by Miss Mary Louise Spangler.

Three "Unknown" Planes Bomb City in Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 5 (AP)—Three warplanes of undetermined nationality bombed the Yugoslav city of Bitolj near the Greek-Albanian war front today, killing two persons and wounding five, it was announced officially.

The announcement said bombs hit the railway station and damaged a military building and airport.

It was understood an emergency meeting of the Yugoslav cabinet was called in Belgrade to consider the situation.

Skies Clear in Many Sections of State and Voters Rush to Polls

Observers Await Re- turns From Pivotal Points in Presidential Race

The voters of Adams county together with citizens in all other parts of the United States rendered their decision today in the free election of a democracy.

In thousands of polling places throughout the great breadth of the nation, they cast millions of ballots which determine whether Franklin D. Roosevelt or Wendell L. Willkie will be the country's next President.

All signs here and throughout the nation pointed to a record outpouring of almost 50,000,000 voters, but revised whether forecasts are not encouraging for all portions of the country. A band of rainfall moved eastward across some of the central states this election day, stirring speculation that forecasts of a record vote might not be realized, but reports of lifting rain threats and heavy voting came from other areas.

In Adams county an 80 per cent vote is expected. That means nearly 18,000 of the 19,964 who are eligible, are voting today in the county's 42 voting districts. Reports available this afternoon from many sections of the county are bearing out those forecasts.

Voting was heavy in all districts of Gettysburg borough. By 1:30 o'clock a total of 1,329 ballots had been cast in the four voting places.

The second ward led with 391 votes and the third ward which has the largest registration of any precinct in town reported only 319 voters out by that hour. In the first ward 308 had voted in the first precinct and 311 in the second.

Horace L. Bender, third ward constable, cast the first ballot in the third ward as he has done for the last 16 general and primary elections. In the first precinct of the first ward Clifford Naugle was the first voter and in the second precinct of that ward Samuel Welser was the first to drop his ballot in the big box. Robert Shealer turned in the first ballot in the second ward.

Reports from Cumberland township this afternoon said voters were standing in line to ballot with more than 300 votes cast by 1 o'clock.

No serious election troubles had developed in the county up to early afternoon. The principal matters coming before the court for attention were the corrections in errors in addresses of registered voters to permit them to vote. Papers were presented and filed in the office of Prothonotary Lee M. Hartman for Roethly A. and William H. Throne, Reading township; George Schachle, Jr., Butler township, and John V. Miller, second ward of Gettysburg.

Expect State Record
A record-breaking vote also was expected in Pennsylvania today, with the state's 36 electoral votes a major stake in the spirited presidential contest.

Skies cleared in many sections after a gray dawn, and voters turned out early in numbers indicative of the heaviest balloting in history. In numerous communities lines formed before polling places opened at 7 a. m. and within two hours thousands had registered their decisions. The polls will close at 8 p. m.

There are 8,118 voting precincts in Pennsylvania. The registration figures for the two major parties in the state follow: Republicans, 2,787,450, and democrats, 2,165,723.

Early balloting in Philadelphia, where one-fifth of the state's 5,000,000 eligible voters are registered, was heavier than in any previous election. In some districts, as many as one-fourth of the eligibles cast their ballots within the first hour. Lines half a block long formed at polling booths in heavily-populated south Philadelphia.

Reports of heavy voting also came from Pittsburgh and the western counties, where a prediction of rain this afternoon sped the early turnout.

A similar situation prevailed in Harrisburg, with voting places crowded at the outset. Skies were clear and temperatures mild there and throughout eastern Pennsylvania.

In Lebanon, 67 votes were cast in one precinct during the first 15 minutes. Election boards there and in Hazleton said the speed of the voting indicated a high percentage of the vote was for straight party tickets.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS URGED AT SQUARE AND 6 CROSSINGS

Highway Department Gives Council Its Suggestions

Receiving a written report from the state Highway department recommending traffic lights for center square and six borough street intersections, members of Gettysburg borough council at their November session Monday evening heard the parking meter issue revived as furnishing a possible means for financing the installation and operation of the proposed lights.

After sharp discussion which brought expressions for and against both the lights and the meters, council voted to have the safety committee gather data on the cost of lights and the operating cost and more information on the way in which parking meters might fit into the picture.

The proposal was to place parking meters in center square only and Councilman H. M. Oyer volunteered to conduct a personal survey of the center square businessmen before council's December meeting and report their attitude on the installation of meters.

State's Recommendations

The traffic survey report, which was signed by I. Lamont Hughes, state Secretary of Highways, and read by Councilman Wilbur J. Stallsmith, a member of the borough safety committee, covered these intersections and made the following recommendations:

Center square intersections—Lights recommended.

Chambersburg and Washington streets—Lights recommended.

Baltimore and Middle intersection—Lights recommended.

York and Stratton streets—Lights recommended to coordinate flow of traffic through square.

Chambersburg-Buford-Springs-West intersection—Lights recommended excepting on West street which should become a one-way street for south-bound traffic.

York-Hanover-Liberty intersection—Lights not recommended because traffic does not require it and the benefits to be secured would not warrant the cost.

Baltimore -Steinwehr avenue intersection—Lights recommended.

Carlisle-Lincoln avenue intersection—Modern lights recommended to replace present "obsolete" fixtures as a means of reducing accidents there.

South Washington-West Middle intersection—Lights not recommended because there is not sufficient traffic there to justify them.

No Estimate of Cost
No complete estimate of either the cost of installation or operation of the recommended lights was submitted in the report and members of the safety committee the lights be installed on a trial basis, if possible, with some new source of revenue so that the borough's 1941 budget will not have to be increased to handle the cost.

The state Highway department's report and recommendations are based on figures gathered in actual traffic counts at the affected intersections, council was told. Blueprints accompanied the report showing the location and plan for coordinated operation of the proposed lights based on a 25-mile-an-hour speed excepting through the square where the rate would be reduced.

Burgess C. A. Heiges reported many complaints about the use of West Water street by buses from the North Washington street terminal. The street is too narrow for a car and bus to pass when cars are parked on both sides of the street, the burgess has been informed. Council recommended that the suggestion be made to the bus company that West Stevens instead of West Water street be used.

Burgess Gives Report
Burgess Heiges turned in a report showing unusually large collections in fines, fees and permits for last month. The report follows: Building permits, $28; digging permits, $21; guides' licenses, $3; roller hire, $439.55; garbage collectors' licenses, $92.55; theatre tax, $450.67, and traffic fines, $50; total, $1,063.77.

The report of Treasurer Fred G. Pfeiffer showed a balance of $2,443.13 after bills of $2,891.77 were paid from the general fund last month. The special fund balance was given at $1,382.34. No loans are expected to be necessary this month.

A communication from D. L. C. Mortensen, Steinwehr avenue extended, reported sustained interest in the move of residents of that section to gain annexation to the borough. The necessary forms for (Continued on Page Two)

A letter was received from the Soroptimist club of Gettysburg expressing concern about council's delay in acting on their previous request for the installation of traffic lights at a number of intersections in the borough.

Cleaning of drain pipes in front of the Shell service station on Buford avenue must be done in 10 days or the borough will remove the pipes which cause flooded conditions there during each rain, council ruled.

C. C. Reuning, West High street, appeared to report that he has contracted for a new pavement ordered by council but unavoidable delays have postponed the work.

Persons who have ignored council notices to lay or repair pavements will be called upon by the police for an expression of their intentions in the matter.

The borough secretary was directed to inform Jay Johnson, who has bought a lot on Carlisle street just north of the borough line on the requirements for entering the town sewer from outside the borough. Painting of the parking and traffic lines is to proceed at once, council directed, even if some other highway department work has to be suspended.

The highway department was instructed to cut back corners at Mrs. Smith's restaurant and Epley's garage immediately as has been done already on other curbs at that intersection. The York-Stratton street intersection is to be improved in the same manner after January 1.

WOMAN HURT

Marian B. McLellan, 49, Allentown, suffered cuts and bruises Monday afternoon when her car ran off the Harrisburg road a mile north of York Springs and struck a pole. The driver told Officer R. L. Dunham of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police who investigated that a wasp flew into her car and distracted her attention.

The car was badly damaged and Miss McLellan will be charged before Justice of the Peace Francis Worley, Latimore township, with reckless driving.

None of our members has visited Gettysburg but when the proposer read Lincoln's famous speech we all felt we were standing with you beside your inspiring monument. Perhaps we felt more even than you could feel now, because nightly and sometimes daily we hear the roar of guns and the drone of enemy planes and suffer some destruction in this "northwest area." We experience not only the memory of the fight for Democracy but we are in the very battlefield. But it is a great inspiration to us to know, what I am sure is true, that the Rotarians of Gettysburg, because they live where they do, are giving us all their sympathies their prayers and their help. The great fight must be fought again. It seems paradoxical for Rotarians to write thus, but the treatment meted to Rotarians by those assailing Democracy is sufficient evidence that Rotary can only function fully when the fight for Democracy is won.

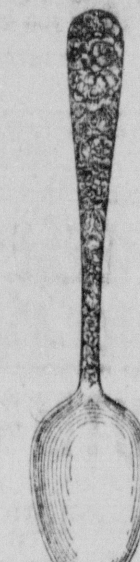

This was the background of our thoughts as we stood and acclaimed "The Rotary club of Gettysburg" and it is my pleasure and duty to send from our president and each of us the heartiest Rotary greetings and good will to you and each of your fellow-members, realizing that the spirit of Rotary will only return and function internationally where Lincoln's vision is realized.

Yours very sincerely in Rotary,
A. H. JOSLIN,
Chairman International Service Committee.

LOOKING AROUND

Another thin week is in store for Adams county football fans with only one game being scheduled on a county gridiron. On Saturday afternoon New Cumberland and Biglerville lock horns at Biglerville in the most important Lower Susquehanna conference game of the season. Both teams sport perfect records and to say that the game will be hotly contested is putting it mildly.

After the dismal showing of the Gettysburg college Bullets against Muhlenberg it is expected there will be some changes in the lineup that will oppose Ursinus at Collegeville Saturday afternoon. Several of the players who have been on the bench due to injuries are expected to be able to resume their old posts.

Gettysburg high faces another tough opponent Friday evening when it plays its final game under the lights this season with Mechanicsburg high on the latter's field. Mechanicsburg still has a chance to cop the Southern Pennsylvania loop honors should Waynesboro receive on unexpected tip and consequently will be primed to turn back the Maroons.

Local fans who listened in on the Army-Notre Dame game Saturday were pleasantly thrilled by the playing of "Buck" Stahlie, substitute center, and son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stahlie, York street. "Buck" turned in several nice plays throughout the game and twice threw Irish ball carriers for substantial losses.

The football forecast last week was much better than a week ago, 20 coming out as forecasted, four going wrong and another resulting in a tie. The season's record is now 107 right, 29 wrong and nine ties.

Coach Fred Haehnen's Gettysburg high reserves will play their final game of the season Thursday afternoon with the Shippensburg Jayvees at Shippensburg. Despite losing four straight the Maroons have high hopes of closing their season successfully.

Two soccer tilts face the Gettysburg college booters this week. Wednesday afternoon Dickinson and Ursinus will be met here and on Saturday Ursinus will be met at Collegeville.

Cornell Gridders Retain Lead in Poll

New York, Nov. 5 (AP) — The football season is nearing the home stretch, and so is the race for the No. 1 position in the Associated Press ranking poll for the 1940 campaign.

It's Cornell, Minnesota, Michigan and Texas Aggies in the first four places this week, with only 375 points separating first place from fourth. Two major contests Saturday will eliminate one or more of these leaders, as Minnesota and Michigan clash at Minneapolis and Texas A. and M. plays Southern Methodist, which is strong enough to win 14th place on the week's list.

The more certain indication that the "championship" race is being narrowed is found, however, in the first place votes. The 178 experts who participated in the fifth weekly poll gave one or more points to 30 teams, but only seven were mentioned for first place.

Cornell received 119 of the 178 first-place votes. Minnesota drew 18, and was rated second by 82 experts. The Aggies received 14 firsts and Michigan and Tennessee, 11 each. Stanford received three and Boston college, two. On the point system, it was much closer, with 1,560 for Cornell, 1,420 for Minnesota, 1,358 for Michigan and 1,185 for Texas A. and M.

That score makes it a cinch that the Minnesota-Michigan game will bring a flock of votes for the winner and send the loser down the list, the distance depending upon the size of the score. Northwestern, which lost a 13-12 decision to Minnesota last Saturday, skidded from eighth to tenth place.

The Aggies run into a tied but undefeated opponent in S.M.U., which collected 58 points in the voting. And the game looks a lot closer than those points show. For the Mustangs think they should have won, or at least tied, last year's game and are out to get square this week.

Stanford, sixth with 906 points, also encounters the kind of opposition that easily might disturb the rankings when it plays Washington. The Huskies, beaten only by Minnesota and Stanford's only rival for the Pacific coast title and the Rose Bowl invitation, are rated tenth with 87 points.

Any of the other leaders will have to do a lot to keep pace with the winners in these contests. Cornell has only to beat one of the weakest Yale teams on record; Tennessee, which polled 929 points for fifth place, plays Little Southwestern of Memphis, Tenn. Notre Dame, which dropped from second place to seventh place after the Army game and received only 769 points, faces a good Navy outfit. Boston college, eighth with 527 points, meets Boston university; Georgetown, ninth with 347, plays a sub-par Maryland team, and Northwestern, which received 316 points, plays its old rival, Illinois.

Others figuring in the voting this week were Nebraska and Duke, tied for 12th with 84 points; Pennsylvania, 23; Penn State, 17; Fordham, 16; Lafayette, 10; Santa Clara and Mississippi State, 9 each; Clemson, 8; Alabama, 5; Texas Tech, 4; Tulane, 3; Ohio State, Mississippi State, Utah and St. Mary's (Calif.), 2 each; Navy and Michigan State, 1 each.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ
New York, Nov. 5 (AP)—Add grid casualties: In the Auburn-Georgia game, one of the Auburns stiff-armed Field Judge Roy Striegel and sent him to the sidelines with a broken arm. . . . That Detroit-Washington deal (Buddy Lewis for $15,000) is cooking again. . . . The Cotton bowl tried to arrange a tie-up that would take the Big Six champs to Dallas New Year's day, but it was no deal. . . . Colorado's only two all-Americans met on the same field Sunday when Whizzer White fit and bled for the Detroit Lions vs. Dutch Clark's Cleveland Rams. . . . Lou Little says Cornell gave the finest passing exhibition he ever has seen, man and boy.

Names is names—Navy has a 266-pound halfback named Hurt who has been hurt all season. . . . One of the Georgetown tackles is Fullilove, but you can't get the opposition to believe it. . . . Frank Zmak (pronounced smack) tackles for Santa Clara, and George Poppin is one of the guards. . . . Arkansas' triple threat back is Harold Hamburg, who has everything—like all good ham-burgers.

Near and far—Only kick Texans have registered against Jess Neely so far is that sometimes the boys can't tell who's carrying the ball for Rice. . . . The reviews of Lou Nova's comeback were so disappointing the December 13 Garden date (which had been reserved for Nova) may be turned over to the Overlin-Belloise proposed re-match. . . . The Wisconsin Badgers, who tangle with Fordham Saturday, will make their pre-game headquarters at Asbury Park, New Jersey. . . . Note to Leon Wood, Elizabeth City, North Carolina: Answers to your questions are (1) Basketball; (2) Rockne played end at Notre Dame. . . . Princeton-Harvard drew 15,000; Yale-Brown, 6,000. Big three, eh?

All-America dept.—Jock Rodgers of Durham, North Carolina, respectfully submits his all-America backfield nominations: Fullback, Kimbrough (Texas Aggies); halves, Harmon (Michigan) and Fox (Tennessee); quarter, Shavely (Cornell).

This corner wonders—Why they played the Star Spangled Banner before and after Navy's game with Penn, but at the Army-Notre Dame game they didn't play it at all. . . . If George Presto Marshall really offered Tim Mara a cool million for the Giant franchise and was turned down. . . . Why and how the Georgetown football team ever got that nickname of Hoyas. (Mebbe such good old Georgetowners as Spike Briggs of Detroit and Paul Florence, the Birmingham baseball magnate, could help on that one). . . . Why you don't hear more about the Tulsa university footballers, who look like the goods.

Today's guest star—Jack Singer, New York Journal-American: "New York university traveled to Missouri Saturday, which is the first time the New Yorkers have found themselves in enemy territory this year."

One-minute interview—Bob Harmon (Columbia publicity chief): "I'm just waiting for Columbia to schedule Texas Christian, so we can throw the Lions to the Christians for a change."

MCCARTHY TO SIGN

New York, Nov. 5 (AP)—Joe McCarthy, who has managed the New York Yankees for ten years, will continue in his job next season. President Edward G. Barrow, returning from a vacation at Tom Yawkey's plantation near Georgetown, S. C., reported he had talked to McCarthy by telephone at his home, and that they had agreed upon terms for 1941. "I don't expect to see Joe until the December meetings in Chicago," Barrow said. "He will sign later on." McCarthy's three-year contract, calling for a $35,000 annual salary, expires this year.

Adams Countians Join Nation In Record Presidential Vote

Skies Clear in Many Sections of State and Voters Rush to Polls

Observers Await Returns From Pivotal Points in Presidential Race

throughout Luzerne county estimated unofficially that 85 per cent of the early vote—heavy as elsewhere in the state—was for straight tickets.

More than half of the early voters in York, where polls opened under cloudy skies, were women. In Easton, a bright sun following an early morning mist, brought out voters in such volume that within the first two hours 15 to 20 per cent of those registered had cast their ballots.

Allentown voters were entering polling booths at the rate of 100 an hour in each of the city's 47 districts. Elsewhere in Lehigh county, there was a steady stream of voters at the polls.

Skies were heavily overcast in Lancaster county as the voting began, but the turnout in Lancaster city and in rural sections indicated a record-smashing vote.

Important States To Watch Tonight

(By the Associated Press)
Straws in the election winds to watch tonight:
New York—It's usually on the winner's side. Its loss by Willkie would be dangerous. Roosevelt could get by without it. Three times since the Civil war its electoral vote went to the loser, the last time in 1916 when it voted for Hughes and Wilson.

Pennsylvania—Another state Willkie cannot well afford to lose. A Roosevelt majority here would spell almost certain victory. The state has voted democratic in a presidential race only once since the Civil war—four years ago when it swung to Roosevelt.

Maryland—Its vote has been in the winner's column in every presidential race since 1868.

California—A Willkie victory here would upset strong democratic hopes and indicate a possible republican victory.

Ohio and North Dakota—Have hit the winner ever since 1892.

Kansas and Wyoming—On the winner's side since 1896.

Idaho and Missouri—Haven't missed since 1900.

Willkie Leads
Goshen, Mass., Nov. 5 (AP)—Voters of Goshen—first Massachusetts town to complete tabulation of presidential balloting—cast 140 votes today for Wendell L. Willkie and 11 for President Roosevelt.

Eastern

New York, Nov. 5 (AP) — The outcome of the 1940 presidential election may well be decided by voters in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, which together have a powerful bloc of 102 electoral votes.

Significant of the importance attached to the area is the fact that President Roosevelt gave two of his five major political addresses in his home state and one in Philadelphia. Willkie has campaigned vigorously through the area for the support which some political prognosticators say is needed for a republican victory, assuming the "solid south" remains democratic.

Solid South

Atlanta, Nov. 5 (AP) — The solid south chooses between traditions today.

Pulling this "Confederate" sector's 124 electoral votes toward the democratic column is the war-bred tradition of party fealty. This tradition is the keystone of new dealers' faith that these votes will be counted tonight for Franklin D. Roosevelt as they have been twice before.

It seems unlikely that the natural emotional pull of this battle, plus an active, although not particularly boisterous, campaign will bring more than 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 voters to the polls in the 11 "solid" states stretching from Texas to Virginia.

New England

Boston, Nov. 5 (AP) — Strong signs of a record vote were stamped plainly on most of New England as the first presidential ballots were cast today, but only a tabulation in the big city and industrial areas tonight could remove the "doubtful" label from four of the six north-eastern states.

campaign come to a relatively peaceful close.

Midwest
Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP) — Midwestern citizens took a direct hand today in the furious fight for the region's 137 electoral votes.

Record turnouts were sighted in most of the states in a sector that assumed the aspects of a natural battle field in the light of democratic presidential victories in 1932 and 1936 and republican comebacks in 1938.

But election experts in several of the states hedged a bit on their predictions of the size of the votes amid indications of inclement weather — ranging from mild but threatening in the eastern part of the area, to occasional showers and colder in the central portion and to freezing in the western district.

Pacific Coast

San Francisco, Nov. 5 (AP) — An "all out" republican attempt to break strong democratic lines and carry off California's 22 electoral votes for Wendell L. Willkie made this one of the liveliest election days in Pacific coast history.

Electioneering also hit a high pitch in Washington and Oregon, but the California battle topped the far-western activity.

Senator Hiram Johnson, seeking election to the senate for a fifth term, captured the democratic and progressive nominations as well as that of his own republican party. In today's election he was opposed only by Anita Whitney, communist party candidate, and Fred Dyster, prohibition party contender.

Rocky Mountains

Denver, Nov. 5 (AP) — Favorable weather and record registrations in most areas indicated a record vote today throughout the Rocky mountain west, which hasn't guessed wrong on a presidential election in the past quarter-century.

Today's voting followed a relatively quiet end to intensive campaigns in the eight mountain region states, with many in both parties conceding that, for the first time since 1912, their 30 electoral votes might be split between the presidential candidates.

Southwest

Kansas City, Nov. 5 (AP) — Rain and chill winds complicated voting in the four southwestern states of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas today and cast a heavier haze over admittedly puzzled last minute prognosticators.

The weather could be a major factor for the importance of the area's farm vote was emphasized in the campaign swings of both farm-mined vice presidential candidates — Henry A. Wallace and Charles L. McNary — through the section.

An indication that politicians had not overlooked the possibility of an inclement voting day came from C. M. Hulien, Missouri democratic chairman, who said "every voter can get to the polls — there'll be wagons if it's too muddy."

Potential voters (citizens 21 and over)	80,528,000.
Estimated eligible voters	60,576,979.

Lenke, union 882,479

Browder, communist 80,159
Others 340,503

The 531 electoral votes were divided: Roosevelt 532; Landon 8.
The nation's electorate balloted today for seven presidential and seven vice presidential candidates, the same number as in 1936. In all 48 states tickets carried democratic and republican choices. Five other states were being voted on in a smaller number of states. The national ticket line-up:

Pupils Pick Willkie

At Fairfield high school, classes in Problems of Democracy took a straw vote this morning with 110 students voting. There were 33 straight "democratic" and 62 straight "republican" tickets, while the 15 other pupils split their votes.

The results follow: Roosevelt, 41 and Willkie, 69; Guffey, 42 and Cooke, 67; Ross, 41 and Gelder, 68; Wagner, 39 and Malone, 67; Haines, 39 and Gross, 70; Sharpe, 40 and Crider, 66, and Baugher, 40 and Baltzley, 67.

Wendell L. Willkie carried the New Oxford high school student body straw ballot this morning by a margin of one vote in a total of 139 cast. C. P. Keefer, the supervising principal of the school reported at noon today. The voting was conducted in the home rooms and resulted in 70 votes for Willkie and 69 for Roosevelt.

inee's triumph, asserting once more "that the reelection of President Roosevelt will result in the nation's involvement in war."

Secretary of State Hull urged his chief's return to office. "The nation needs (his) continued leadership," Hull declared, in "the critical days and months which lie ahead."

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York coupled his last call for Willkie's election with the statement that "given four years more, the third term candidate will lead you over the hills to the poorhouse and the government handout."

Senator Clark (D-Mo), Opponent of many administration policies, notably in foreign affairs, said "I warn the multitude of Americans who share my opposition to getting us into war that they have nothing to hope for from Wendell Willkie."

Senator Johnson (R-Calif) — "I am convinced that a vote for Wendell Willkie means a vote for real defense without involvement in Europe's inferno of war."

Alexander Woolcott—"We have in the White House a man, who, like Winston Churchill, can put into words what is in all our hearts—our faith, our hope and our charity."

Republican Chairman Martin—"The battle of America is almost won."

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia (at a New York rally)—"the campaign is over. This is a victory meeting for the reelection of President Roosevelt."

John T. Flynn, author and economist—"Franklin D. Roosevelt will take us into this war."

Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state in the Wilson cabinet—"A third term candidacy is 'an affront to the national conscience,' and the position taken on the subject by new deal backers is a 'tragic mistake.'"

Marshall Field, department store owner—"Business is more sound than it has been for many years. Roosevelt has laid down certain rules. Business can and will prosper under those rules."

Governor Stassen (R-Minn) — "We're tired of experiments and pipe dreams and of an administration that spends money like a drunken sailor."

Willkie Votes
Wendell L. Willkie, "lawyer," was among the millions who cast his ballot before noon. Entering the polling place at a public school in New York city, he said in response to a question that he was going to vote "straight republican."

President Roosevelt arranged to vote later in the day at the white frame town hall in the village of Hyde Park, N. Y.

32-10 for Willkie
Boston, Nov. 5 (AP)—The town of Mount Washington counted a vote of 32 for Wendell Willkie to 10 for President Roosevelt today, bringing the early total in Massachusetts to 172 for Willkie and 21 for Mr. Roosevelt.

Trend in Other States

The trend of the election follows:
New Jersey—Another of the sharply contested commonwealths—terse reported: "Record balloting indicated." In some counties almost one-fourth of the entire vote was cast by 11 a. m.

Delaware's weather was generally favorable and reports from that area also proclaimed: "Turnout seems heaviest in history."
An all-time high of 6,690,000 registered voters had qualified in the state. A little more than half are upstate.

FIRST RETURNS REPORTED FROM N.H. VILLAGE

24 Votes for Willkie 7 for President Roosevelt

Sharon, N. H., Nov. 5 (AP)—Voting by candlelight, this quiet little southern New Hampshire farming town that hasn't electricity, a store, a church or even a policeman today was the first in the nation to report in the presidential election.

Traditionally republican, it gave 24 votes to Wendell Willkie and seven to President Roosevelt.

The balloting compared with the 1936 vote of 13 for Alf Landon and three for the President, and the 1932 count of 11 for Herbert Hoover and one for Mr. Roosevelt.

The voting, in the 175-year-old colonial red brick, one-room school house on the pine tree slopes of Temple mountain, began at a minute after midnight—way past the usual bedtime for most of the 60 residents of this town—but they stayed and ate and laughed and liked it.

It took just five minutes for all the towns registered voters to be recorded.

Immediately, George C. Keeler, middle-aged investment broker and town moderator, began announcing the result, ballot by ballot. The counting was completed at 12:12 a. m. (E.S.T.)

Then the 16 men and 12 women voters—three of the votes were cast by absentee ballot—gathered about with coffee and doughnuts and calmly discussed the ballot totals. Some of the voters were in their best clothes; others included overalls or aprons in their attire.

As they waited for the polls to open, they enjoyed a chicken pie supper, served by the Monadnock region association, a non-political group, which instituted the early voting.

None would admit to being weary as the hours passed. As Charles N. Wilson, 83, a farmer and the town's oldest resident, explained: "I'm not a bit tired. I got up late — 6:30. I usually get up at 4:30."

2nd Town Finished

Hart's Location, N. H., Nov. 5 (AP) — This town today counted a vote of three for Wendell Willkie to five for President Roosevelt to bring the early total for two towns in New Hampshire—first in the nation to report—to 27 for Willkie and 12 for Mr. Roosevelt.

In 1936 the voters of Hart's Location in the White mountains cast 11 votes for President Roosevelt and four for his republican opponent, Alf M. Landon.

Dies in Crash of His Own Plane on 1st Flight

Masontown, Pa., Nov. 5 (AP) — Tony Michael, 23, son of a miner, achieved his ambition of owning his own airplane yesterday, then crashed to his death on his first flight.

The youth's father, Peter Michael, witnessed the tragedy. Michael obtained the ship in Waynesburg. Trying it out in West Masontown, he saw he was overshooting the field and might strike his home.

Witnesses said he gave his plane "the gun" in an attempt to rise, but the motor failed. The ship plunged nose-first into the ground. The youth died several hours later in a Uniontown hospital. His father said his enlistment in the U.S. Naval Air corps had expired last September and that he planned to re-enlist upon expiration of a furlough.

Ordinance Regulating Barbers Called Useless

Aliquippa, Pa., Nov. 5 (AP) — This is the place for the man who never gets to the barber shop on time.

Borough Solicitor Louis Klein told council last night a barber may cut hair at any hour of the day. He said an ordinance restricting hair-cutting to 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. was "useless" because "we cannot legally regulate" barbers' hours. Klein based his ruling on a Superior court decision (Kellerman vs. City of Philadelphia).

The announcement resulted from a one-man campaign by barber Florenzo G. Ieri, who was arrested for exceeding the ordinance hours.

Death Ends 6-Year "Sleep" of Girl, 7

Akron, O., Nov. 5 (AP)—Death last night ended seven-year-old Dorothy June Russell's six-year sleep.

When she was less than a year old she was stricken with whooping cough, followed by encephalitis or "sleeping sickness." She fell into a coma from which she never recovered.

Her unusual case was studied widely by medical science but all attempts at a cure failed. At first, fed with a spoon, she grew normally. Then, losing weight, she was placed in a hospital here Thursday in a vain attempt to feed her artificially.

SALONIKA RAIDS FAIL TO BREAK GREEK MORALE

Italians Pushed Back Into Albania in Northern Sector

By J. WES GALLAGHER

Salonika, Greece, (by telephone to Budapest), Nov. 5 (AP) — Fighting against a more numerous and better armed foe, the Greeks today were driving the Italians back into Albania on this northern sector while withstanding furious air attacks which have caused large civilian casualties, but no apparent break in Greek morale.

For three days I have watched Italian planes rain death on this second largest Greek city, but I have not seen one military objective hit nor one essential service disrupted. The city's inhabitants have seen Italian planes crashing in flames and have witnessed roof-to-roof chases between police and fallen Italian airmen in running gun battles.

I was in the center of this city at the top of the Aegean sea during the first big raid when six bombs fell around my hotel and one bomb hit it squarely.

The alarm caught me in the bath. Hurrying to a window as I dressed, I saw a huge geyser of water as the first bomb fell in the bay 60 yards from my hotel.

A second later I was showered with glass as two bombs exploded in the street 40 feet away.

Rushing into the hall, I encountered C. L. Sulzberger, New York Times correspondent. Together we started toward a stairway when a bomb struck the roof a few feet ahead.

Neither of us was hurt. A few seconds later the raid was over. In air thick with dust we looked into rooms just three doors away from our own and found them in ruins.

Outside, a dead fisherman lay a few yards from the hotel.

A few fires were burning in the central business district, the hardest hit, and firemen quickly were on the job.

I was to see many such scenes in the next few days, both by these youths and volunteer Red Cross workers.

This was the first of five raids Friday and six Saturday. Many casualties were reported among women and children when bombs hit a residential section, smashing small homes to bits.

An Evening Thought

Dangers are light, if they seem light; and more dangers have deceived men than forced them.—Bacon.

OUT OF THE PAST

Happenings of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times the files reveal.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Local Miscellany: Mrs. Magdalena, widow of John Sachs, of Two Taverns, has been granted a pension. The hunting season opened on Saturday and many rabbits and partridges were killed, game being plentiful.

The United Presbyterian church property, in this place, was not sold on Saturday.

Silver Wedding: The Rev. T. J. Barkley, the popular pastor of the Reformed church in this place, and his wife celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage on Friday evening at the parsonage. The reception, to which were invited the congregation and friends, lasted from six until nine o'clock. During those hours the house was crowded with friends who congratulated the happy couple on their married journey of a quarter of a century. The Rev. D. N. Dittmar, of Littlestown, offered prayer, and the Rev. J. C. Bowman, of Hanover, made a congratulatory address. Some members of the congregation presented carpets for the parlors and many beautiful and useful silver presents were received.

Diehl—Sheely — The Rev. W. K. Diehl, of Nittany, Pa., and Miss Annie B. Sheely, daughter of ex-County Superintendent Sheely, were married at the bride's home in this place on Thursday morning last. H. G. Butteroff, of Harrisburg, was best man, and Miss Manerva A. Sheely acted as bridesmaid. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Joel Swartz, assisted by the Rev. Edward Hoshour, of Bellefonte. After the ceremony the couple left for an extended wedding trip.

Married: Bush—Rex — Oct. 30, at the Lutheran parsonage in Bendersville, by Rev. J. M. Rice, Claudius H. Bush, of Maryland, to Miss Josephine Rex, of Bendersville.

Goble—Hoke — Nov. 26, in Abbottstown, by Rev. J. Tomlinson, W. C. Goble, of this county, to Miss Ellen Hoke, of York county.

Sales: Dr. J. W. C. O'Neal has sold the Central hotel, on Baltimore street, to James O. McCavitt, for $5,000.

John Bender has purchased the Jacob C. Schriver farm, on the York pike, 82 acres and improvements, at $3,340, and the mountain lot at $30.

C. S. Duncan, Esq., has disposed of the Gettysburg Roller Flour Mill to Joseph J. Smith.

Martin Heltzel has purchased from J. S. Weaver the frame house and blacksmith stand on High street for $1,000. Mr. Heltzel will erect a building for a bakery on the ground occupied by the shop, and remove his bakery into it in the spring.

David McCleary has bought the Washington House in this place from Mrs. Houser. Terms private. We understand that the two new houses, built by Mr. McC. on Steinwehr avenue, have been transferred to Mrs. H. in payment.

A. Danner Buehler, agent for George Buehler's heirs, on Saturday sold the dwelling house on Baltimore street, to John Mayer, of York, for $3,050.

H. Alfred Scott purchased on Thursday, the Geo. H. Swope house on Chambersburg street, for $1,800.

Personal Mention: Miss Barnitz, of Hanover, is visiting Miss Virginia O'Neal.

Miss Margaret G. Valentine has returned from Lebanon, bringing her friend Miss Zimmerman with her.

Miss Roberta Wolf has as her guest Miss Middleton, of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Joe Harding, of Phillipsburg, nee Miss Mollie Jameson, of this place, is spending a few days here.

George Chritzman, of Westminster, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Chritzman, in this place.

Dr. J. P. Breneman has removed to York, where he will open a drug store.

John Warner and Ernest Miller left this morning for a week's visit to New York city.

Mrs. N. B. Scott, Mrs. Alexander Armstrong and son, of Hagerstown, who were visiting Edward McPherson, left for home yesterday.

An Interesting Lecture: Miss Olof Kruger, the Esquimaux, had an intensely interested audience present in Christ Lutheran church Tuesday night, when she delivered her lecture on Greenland. Miss Kruger is about the size of a child of five years in this country. Her arms are short and seem bent outwards at the elbows. This, she says, was produced by the habit of always sitting with arms folded to keep warm. She is three feet and four inches tall.

A Golden Wedding: October 27th was a day of more than ordinary interest in the family life of Mr. and Mrs. William Bream, Sr., of Biglerville, it being the fiftieth anniversary of their married life.

It was a typical family gathering, consisting of the parents, children and grandchildren together with the pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Rice, and a few friends, to the number of forty-seven.

Rev. E. D. Weigle, a son-in-law, presented, in the name of the children and grandchildren, a walnut extension table, a fine dinner and tea set consisting of 122 pieces and a lap robe.

At high noon the extensive table fairly groaned under the weight of the good things thereon. Dinner over, the suspended exercises were resumed. A song entitled "Trust and Obey" was sung. Miss Grace Bream, a granddaughter, presiding at the organ. The Rev. E. D. Weigle read a historic sketch of the family.

PEOPLE WHO MAKE MISTAKES

I READ somewhere that people who did not make mistakes never made anything. Creators, those who do things in a big way, and those who go forward, have always been those who were not afraid to make mistakes.

There is one thing quite noticeable about those who have gone far, and risen high, however, and that is that most of the little mistakes have been made early in the game. Little mistakes are really great teachers. They help us to avoid the big mistakes.

Cecil Rhodes once stated that he probably made more mistakes than anyone he ever heard of—but that he paid little attention to them. If we worry about our mistakes we lose the lesson that they teach and lose valuable time and mental health in the bargain.

People who are forever doing notable things are always accused of making mistakes. Their only accurate appraisal rests upon the mistakes that they do not make. Old Josh Billings once stated that success did not consist in not making mistakes, but in not making the same one twice!

Every great success is sprinkled with mistakes but they soon lose their identity in overshadowing achievements.

If we were always sure of an idea, a plan, or a course of conduct, we would go forward with greater confidence, but we always know in advance that we may make mistakes, and thus we are forearmed. We all know that mistakes are sure to come with any attempt at doing something worth while. He who makes a mistake unknowingly deserves no censure for, if he is wise, he will profit from it having it pointed out to him.

The acknowledgement of a mistake is a fine trait of character, but to dwell upon it is weakness. Forget your mistakes and pass on. Bear in mind that the man or woman never lived who didn't make mistakes. The worst of all mistakes is to think that you can't make them!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Dare! Take a Chance."

HERITAGE
How much of me am I
In time and place?
How much of years gone by
Is there to trace?
How much of me shall be
Living another age
Praising or shaming me
Talked of as heritage?

How far does life extend Backward, before?
Where does it start and end?
Can one explore
Sources of thought and deed,
Evil and good,
Weakness and strength and read
Rightly each mood?

How much of me am I
And of what's past?
Who was my first to die?
Who'll be the last?
Heritage! Just how far
Onward it flows
Making us what we are

"ON THE LONG TIDE," by Laura Krey; (Houghton Mifflin: $2.75).

A GOOD deal of advance material on Laura Krey's second novel, "On the Long Tide," has arrived at this cluttered desk, and most of it has made the point that the book is not "a cross section of the American past." It was very natural, then, that when the book arrived it should be read with that statement in mind.

The fact is that the book is a cross section of part of the American past, no matter what anybody writes. It is even more a cross section than many books which have been called that. It not only cuts through the life of Texas, which is its chief setting — it also gives the reader a cross section of Virginia life, of Tennessee life, of Louisiana life and even of a few other places, all a century or more in the past. Mrs. Krey has traveled widely while writing the book, and nearly all the scenes have been written on the spot. Hence the sections she turns up for examination have a vividness all their own. Her knife is sharper than it was in "The Long Tide," and that makes for better, if not bigger, cross sections.

The new book is the story of the creation, in blood and struggle and perhaps even a little chicanery, of the Republic of Texas. Mrs. Krey has needed a focal point for so large a story, and for this she has chosen a young cousin of Thomas Jefferson, by name Jeffrey Fentress. She even starts him out with an interview with his distinguished relative, and anybody who has made the pilgrimage to Monticello will understand that the interview could have been just as she says it was.

Jeffrey goes west to Nashville, where his father had established himself. Thence he goes west and south to New Orleans, but New Orleans is not for him. So to Mexico and Texas, and so to an experience with one Teresa, in whom (and in whose father) Jeffrey discovers what it is that the Houstons and the Austins and the other Texas patriots are to contend with, and eventually overthrow. Jeffrey becomes a man in every sense of the word, particularly a man of courage. And the magnificent country in which he is tried and proven becomes, to the reader, a land so familiar that most of the time he is reading this long and spacious book he lives in the land.

Mrs. Krey's story is so long it cannot even be summarized here. But "On the Long Tide" has better construction and a better feeling for climax than her first. It deserves wide attention.

This was followed by a congratulatory address from the Rev. J. M. Rice, the beloved pastor of the family. Another song entitled "When Shall We Meet Again," being sung, the benediction was pronounced by the pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Bream were married October 27, 1840 at the Lutheran parsonage in York Springs, the officiating clergyman being the Rev. Mr. Miles.

The Road to Snani Lun

By RITA MOHLER HANSON

Chapter 33
Struggle By Night

"Perhaps I'm not good enough for the Prince if he couldn't find a Mongol girl good enough for him."

"He never tried to find a Mongol girl; he only tried to find you."

The lama who had drunk most of the wine, now asked Temu a special question. The others joined him.

"What's the joke?" she asked. "They're making sport of me because you wear a sash, the badge of maidenhood. Shall I tell them you're a goddess and I'm but a common man?"

"Tell the lama to begin his prayers," she said shortly.

"It's a good idea." At five o'clock the boy returned with the extra horses. Temu paid for them and for the hospitality they had received, and shortly afterwards, led the way across the snow-clad plain under a threatening sky.

"We'll save time by crossing the mountains here," he said. "Do you know where we are?" Lynn asked, gratefully tucking her hands in the long sleeves of her Mongol coat and letting her pony have his head. The horses kept side by side at a steady pace.

"We're directly east of the border town of Dorchel." She looked at him curiously. "Do you realize that when we arrive there, we'll probably find that Dick and the Duke of Sachto have taken over the government of Shani Lun?"

"That's on the knees of the gods," he said shortly and urged his horse ahead. He did not seem to want to talk about it.

They began to climb through a rocky gorge that looked like the dumping ground the contractors had used when they were finished with the mountain peaks for the Creator.

The trail wound interminably hour after hour through the waste. They stopped a few minutes at noon for a bowl of hot tea and then pressed on into a rough plateau, thinly covered with snow in the places where dry grass lay abundantly around the rocky outcrops.

Temu saw that Lynn was becoming tired and cold. "We'll soon reach a stone hut," he promised.

"Can't we sleep out?" she asked, drowsy and a bit breathless from the high altitude.

"Too cold with snow on the ground." He urged the horse forward at a faster pace, crossed another divide, and followed a stream around a mountain peak to an alpine valley where the hut with a few stone cattlepens stood on a shelf above a perpendicular canyon wall. Tethered near the hut were three saddle horses.

Temu stopped. "Someone else is here tonight," he said in a troubled voice. "I don't like it."

"Why?" asked Lynn, halting her horse beside him.

"The place has a reputation of being a robbers' rendezvous." He sat thinking a moment before dismounting. "Stay here," he said and disappeared into the hut through a lower door, across which hung a camel skin. Lynn's pony sighed wearily and cocked an inquiring ear back at her.

"You don't feel any worse than I do," she answered him and looked up at the sky. Low, threatening clouds were smoothing themselves out in preparation for another snowfall.

Temu reappeared. "Three of them," he said, leading the horses into one of the stone-fenced corals. "They're none too prepossessing but we'd better stay. One giant of a fellow looks as if he might be a renegade professional wrestler from some Prince's retinue."

Lynn slid down into the snow. "Wait until I can go in with you," he advised, giving the horses their nosebags of grain and loosening the saddles. He concealed his field-glasses and electric torch in a saddle-bag. Then he turned to Lynn and began unwinding the sash from about her waist. He spoke crisply.

"Keep on the fur cap, pulled low. Do not look the men in the face; they'll consider it an invitation." He thrust a small pistol into her hand.

"It's loaded and on safety." He showed her how to handle the weapon. "Hide it in your blouse and do not use it unless I give you the word. Do you understand?"

She nodded, unable to speak.

"Then put your saddle on your shoulder and follow me."

Lynn drew back. "If it's that bad, can't we go on?"

"We're between the devil and the deep blue sea. Keep your courage. We'll come through all right."

Alone with Death

Lynn followed him, stiff and white with apprehension. The inside of the small hut was bare except for the accoutrements and packs that the men had brought in. A small argol fire burned in the center of the room under a smoke hole in the sod floor. The floor was a bed of animal chips. Temu stacked the saddles and saddle bags in a pile and spread a robe for her.

The three men watched them in silent inhostility sizing them both up and their few belongings.

Later, in the blackest part of the night just before dawn, Temu's senses were brought alert by the pressure of Lynn's hand on his shoulder. He turned over and her fingers explored his face and tilted it so that she could put her lips to everything, in cap and gown, in tennis dress, in bathing suits.

She looked startled. "Did Dick show around all those silly snapshots I sent him?"

"He gave them to the Princess Mother."

"She must have been shocked, considering how thoroughly the Chinese cover themselves."

"So was the Prince—pleasantly shocked. He has built you a swimming pool in the palace grounds."

Angry color mantled Lynn's face.

"I despise a man who's so sure of himself. Why are you content to be a slave to such a person?"

"SUNSET MEMORIES"

A Retrospect of a Life spent during the last seventy years of the Nineteenth Century

By LEONARD MARSDEN GARDNER

Monday 13th

While Harvey (the driver) gets breakfast Pratt goes to reconnoitre. He finds a path by which we can get to the White House without waiting on the train. Off we go over the field, down the hill toward the railroad, digging a path for our team across a little stream to Tenny Station. Here were immense numbers of men and animals and teams concentrated for the new movement. Stopping for a little while for consultation we hurry on to the White House. At this point the plain is covered with white tents and the river crowded with transports. The spectacle is a grand one. We steer for the Commission Headquarters and find a number of delegates whom we knew at Fredericksburg. They are packing up to leave. I here get the first letter from my wife since I left home. It makes me feel all right. My six weeks leave of absence has about expired and my last chance for some time to come of getting to Washington is present. I must go. I bid farewell to the brethren who are to return immediately to the field. I get my pass and when it arrives, go aboard of the steamboat "Highland Light," and feel that my campaign is ended. God be thanked for that kind providence that has preserved me amid the dangers of the past few weeks and has safely brought me thus far.

Tuesday 14th

It was about 12 o'clock on yesterday when we came aboard this boat expecting of course to start immediately for Washington. But in this our hopes were disappointed. Some defect in the machinery requires the boat to be detained until it can be fixed. We pass the weary hours as best we can in conversation promenading the deck &c., till after night came on we laid down on the floor of the cabin, expecting in the morning to find ourselves well on the way to Washington.

Wednesday 15th

Got off this morning at 9:30 a. m. The sight was a grand one as we passed down the York river amid the multitudes of vessels coming and going at this point. White House is the furthest place up the river that a good landing for transports can be found and has been the base of operations for the last week or more. A fine plantation spreads out on the south side of the river for several miles. It was here that Mrs. Curtis lived when she was courted and married by George Washington. The scenery was attractive all the way down the river. The country was low and in some places swampy, but presenting a fine array of forest. We passed Yorktown in the afternoon and had a good view of the place where Cornwallis surrendered and closed the Revolutionary war. In the evening the steamer had reached the Chesapeake bay and looking up the river I could see the sun set in the water that bounded the line of the horizon. The sky was perfectly clear. Went to sleep again on the cabin floor at an early hour.

Thursday 16th

Disappointment seemed to be our lot, on this voyage. I noticed this morning on waking that the boat was still. Are we at Washington? I rose and looked out of the window and saw nothing but the farm skirted shore of the river on either side. The boat is fast on a bar whither the pilot ran her last night in his eagerness to gain time by avoiding the circuitous route of the channel. He came on at high tide and is now helplessly fast until the tide rises again. Several efforts were made to get her off but without success. Considerable impatience and murmuring prevails but all to no purpose. Here we are stuck in the middle of the Potomac, doomed to wait until some lucky swell starts us on our journey again. The time is spent in reading, writing up the diary, conversation with returning soldiers &c. Perhaps it is all for the best. About noon a friendly tug came to our aid and giving us an effective pull brought us out into the deep water. Then we start again for Washington as fast as the engines will move us. Had a fine view of Mt. Vernon and Port Washington in passing. Stopped at Alexandria a few minutes and reached the wharf at Washington shortly afterward. I go to the Commission rooms, wash up, change my clothes, and feel like a new man.

Friday 17th

Start out on a hunt for men from our county who are in the hospital here. Visit the Pennsylvania Agency. Call at the Smithsonian Institute. Spend a short time at the Capitol and President's house and walk through the Jackson Square.

Additional Remarks

With above, the record of my experiences with the Christian Commission during the Wilderness Campaign closes. I kept a diary in the boot prepared for that purpose and my journey from day to day was noted down at the time. After 38 years I have copied it here that it may be more carefully preserved and easily read. It was written with a pencil and would be hard for anyone else to decipher correctly. The original, I hope will be preserved by my descendants. It is gratifying to me to think that my children will have this account of the part their father took in the gigantic war for the Union that deluged the country with blood for four terrible years of the nation's history.

From Washington I went to Philadelphia and thence to my home in Curwensville, where I resumed my pastoral work. It has always been a great source of pleasure to me in after years to review the stirring events of which I was a spectator at the time of their occurrence.

Will Hawaii Be 49th Star In United States Flag?

(By the Associated Press)

Far out in the Pacific today there is an election underway which may lead to addition of a 49th state to the Union.

While people on the mainland are waiting for final returns of the Presidential vote, Hawaii's 415,000 will be just as interested in the outcome of a plebiscite to determine whether it is the desire of the majority that their islands be admitted as the 49th state.

Hawaii has been a territory of the United States for 40 years. Its citizens are citizens of the United States and its Federal taxes go into the United States treasury.

With a few exceptions, the government of Hawaii today functions as does the government of a state. Principal exception is basic in that the Congress of the United States can determine the form of government for the territory.

Hawaii has no representation in the electoral college. It does not elect its governor, and its representative in Congress is merely a delegate with the right of debate and introduction of bills but no vote.

Laws Can Be Voided

Hawaii has a legislature consisting of 15 senators and 30 members of a lower house. Congress can void laws passed by this legislature, but never has.

The governor is appointed by the President.

Should Hawaiians vote for statehood, the next probable step would be action by the legislature to have the expression formally relayed to Congress. Approval of Congress is necessary for admission to statehood.

Should Hawaii be admitted, it would be the first new state since 1912, when Arizona joined the union.

It would be the first time statehood had been granted a territory separated from the mainland. (Hawaii is 2,100 miles from San Francisco, four and a half days by steamship.)

Total area of the territory is about twice the combined size of Delaware and Rhode Island.

Islands' products.

The November 5 plebiscite was ordered by a joint congressional committee as a condition to further consideration by Congress of Hawaii's frequent demands for statehood.

Democrats and republicans on the island have indicated their support of the statehood move, but there is a strong undercurrent against a change of status.

Opponents of statehood argue that the large proportion of residents of Oriental ancestry would control island government. Others charge that admission of Hawaii as a state would weaken United States defenses in the Pacific and increase the costs of local government.

Congress Must Decide

Proponents counter with statistics to show that no single racial element ever voted as a bloc and point out that in time of war the government would exercise the same authority over states as territories.

In any event, the question won't be settled by the plebiscite. Congress is the final authority.

FIND HUNTER DEAD OF HEART ATTACK

Chambersburg, Nov. 5.—Charles E. Miller, of Scotland avenue, was found dead Monday morning in a cornfield on the Harold B. Stouffer farm, near Ohio avenue. Miller was 81 years old. Dr. J. E. Kemper, who had attended him in recent months, attributed death to a heart attack.

A veteran auctioneer, Miller had gone hunting Monday morning and was seen shortly before 9 a. m. by an employee of the Stouffer farm. The body was found at 9:30 a. m. by the same employee.

Retiring five years ago after spending more than 40 years as an auctioneer, Miller also had been watchman of the former Piedmont Silk Mill in Ramsey avenue. Earlier in life he was an engine fireman for the Cumberland Valley railroad. He served several terms as constable of the First Ward.

Surviving are two sons and two daughters, William and Charles Miller, Mrs. George Fegan and Mrs. John Hoover, all of Chambersburg. He made his home with Mrs. Fegan.

RETURNS SUICIDE VERDICT

Philadelphia, Nov. 5 (AP)—A corner's jury listed as suicide the death of John S. North, prominent sportsman and manufacturer. North was found dead in his apartment September 12 and the jury decided he shot himself in the head while temporarily deranged.

Hats now are being made commercially from a wool-like substance manufactured from the casein of milk.

YORK COUNTY'S FIRST
HUNTING FATALITY IS REPORTED TO OFFICIALS

York, Pa., Nov. 5—York county's first fatal hunting accident of the current small-game season was reported Monday to authorities when Francis W. Baumgardner, 33, near Mechanicsburg, was found dead with a bullet wound through his abdomen. Coroner L. U. Zech said there was evidence that the fatal wound was accidentally self-inflicted.

The victim's body was found by two other hunters, Burgard Lloyd and his son, Robert, on the edge of a tract of woodland near New Cumberland.

It is believed by Doctor Zech that Baumgardner was seated on a rock apparently resting when one of the shells from a double-barreled shotgun discharged, tearing a gaping hole in the victim's abdomen. There were marks in the soil indicating the gun was pointing skyward when the shell exploded.

RURAL FORCES
UNDERTAKE TWO
DEFENSE PLANS

AAA Committee and State Farm Council
at Work

Harrisburg, Nov. 5 (AP)—The rounding up of Pennsylvania's agricultural forces behind the national defense program has been undertaken on two fronts.

The AAA advisory committee, headed by James E. Walker, chairman of the state agricultural conservation committee, opened recently an extensive educational program to gear all phases of farming to the national defense.

The Pennsylvania advisory agriculture defense council, named by Governor James and headed by Agriculture Secretary John H. Light, running parallel to the federal agency's aims but affecting another group of farmers, is establishing county organizations to carry out the central group's plans as they develop.

The federal agency inaugurated its farm defense plans last month at a gathering of 1,300 agricultural conservation program committee-men at State College. A committee of 22 farmers was named as an advisory group to execute the program, and the defense committee evolved.

Other Members

With Walker on the defense group are Clyde A. Zehner, Sugarloaf, Luzerne county, vice-chairman; Robert S. Einstein, chief of the educational section of the agricultural adjustment administration in Pennsylvania, secretary; D. M. Saylor, Bedford county; Clarence A. Kulp, Chester county, and D. L. Fulkman, Lawrence county.

The federal agency's committee, with headquarters in Harrisburg, is ready to cooperate with the state group and all commodity groups in the all-important mobilization of food-production, says Einstein.

Roughly, this is the federal plan, as outlined by Walker:

Advocating the extension of the food stamp plan to include low income groups not on relief, as means of preventing undernourishment; stabilize production and encourage better market methods to prevent soil and labor waste and ruinous farm prices; storing of adequate reserves; assure fair prices by commodity loans, market quotas, surplus purchase programs, and establishing prices by federal and state agencies now operating for such purposes.

Light's advisory group, at its first meeting, was told that there were no indications that conscription would have "any serious effect upon farm labor."

However, a move was started to establish farm labor as a skilled type, rather than the "leftover" from industry. Need for greater efficiency on the farm was stressed, the meeting contended, only as skilled labor becomes more prevalent.

Preliminary Suggestions

The Governor's committee received these preliminary suggestions prior to statewide organization:

1. Further development of the cooperative basis of farm operation, particularly in the use of equipment, loaning of modern types of machinery to farmers whose acreage would not warrant outright purchase.

2. Education as a vital factor in any defense measure should be placed upon a permanent and continued basis, rather than merely emergency.

3. Much equipment now lying idle on farms part of the year could be used for increased production in emergency. Examples: Brooder houses and canning factories in use only in certain seasons.

4. Survey of highways and thoroughfares to route farm products to the best advantage without interfering in any military movements over main arteries of travel.

Light commented: "Great food surpluses now on hand, and the ability of farmers to produce bountifully when occasion requires it, are a guarantee to provide needed food supplies. It is no cultivated land.

FRANCE STARTS
RATIONING OF
COAL SUPPLIES

Parisians Shiver;
Electric Radiators
in Demand

Paris (via Berlin, Delayed), Oct. 30 (AP)—Cold weather struck unheated France this week.

With coal supplies almost exhausted and most office buildings and public establishments without heat, Parisians shivered and donned more clothing.

Electric radiators, virtually the only heating facilities available, were at a premium.

French authorities announced plans have been completed for rationing coal—scarce because of transport difficulties resulting from the war—but tickets will not be available for several weeks.

Coal for November will be parceled out in pound lots, instead of tons. The amount of coal allowed will depend upon the number of persons in a family or office.

The following provisional coal rations have been established for November:

Families of one through three persons, 110 pounds.

Families of four through five persons, 165 pounds.

Families of six through seven persons, 265 pounds.

Families of eight through nine persons, 320 pounds.

Families above nine persons, 430 pounds.

Possession of coal tickets is no guarantee that coal will be delivered, however, because deliveries are contingent upon a dealer's supplies and his ability to transport the coal.

The government has urged families to conserve fuel by closing off most of their houses and gathering in one or two rooms to make fullest possible use of coal for heating and cooking.

Wrecked Plane Found
On Mountain; 10 Dead

Salt Lake City, Nov. 5 (AP)—For the third time in six years, workers prepared today to take from the canyon-bound fastness of Utah's Wasatch mountains the bodies of airline travelers.

Ten men and women—seven passengers and a crew of three—died early yesterday as a big, bi-motored United Air Lines transport struck against the mountainside 13 miles northeast of here and was destroyed.

Eastbound from San Francisco, the huge plane circled through a furious snowstorm in an attempt to "line up" the Salt Lake City airport and land. Instead, it smashed into the 25-degree slope of the Wasatch mountains which rise 7,000 feet from the valley floor.

Force of the collision piled seven passengers and the stewardess in a fantastic, twisted heap at the front of the cabin and broke the plane almost in half.

The pilots, Captain Howard Fey of Oakland, Calif., and First Officer Thomas E. Sandersgren of Tacoma, Wash., were catapulted from the cabin and tossed into the snow, 20 feet ahead of the severed nose of the plane.

Pack horses were led to the scene last night to transport the bodies down the mountainside but Coroner W. L. Rigby of Davis county directed that the attempt be deferred until today.

Since 1934 three transport planes have crashed into the Wasatch mountains, all within close range of Salt Lake City and with a total death list, including yesterday's, of 37.

estimated that the farmers of America are able to produce food to support 250,000,000 people."
